PUTNAM

"Yes, madam, undoubtedly the finest complexion cream that science and an understanding of the ways of nature has ever permitted the chemists of this or any other country to produce. At $1.50 a jar it is really a gift to the discerning woman who is so fortunate as to have an opportunity to buy it, especially at such a season when the sun is so trying on some delicate complexions."

Something along this line of dope, with much more added, was an aid to separating a number of women in the Grove street section on Thursday from a dollar and a half each. In return they received a jar of beautifier that was represented as a miracle worker—a cream that would put a complexion like that of a combination lily and rose on an old trench shoe.

The salesman, at least in some instances, represented himself as an agent of a famous firm of perfumers and cold cream specialists. This new product would be demonstrated here in the very near future, he said, mentioning one of the well known drug stores of the city as the headquarters of the demonstrator, who would pay particular attention to illustrating to each woman who could present a coupon which he supplied with each jar of cream that he sold how the cream should be applied to obtain the best results.

One woman who was so unfortunate as to be swayed to the extent of losing her purse strings to the extent of $1.50 observed almost immediately upon opening the wrappings on her purchase that the cream was not the product of the famous firm that the agent said he represented, but that the jar bore the label of a little known manufacturer at Binghamton, N. Y.

Realizing then that she had been swindled, she notified the police and Captain Bulger started out to search the Grove street section of the city for the man. The captain, though he spent nearly all of the forenoon on the trail, did not locate him.

The officer did learn some things of interest, however, and chief among these was that the man selling the cream had bought the product that he was offering at the "Five and Ten" here in Putnam and that he had paid 15 cents a jar for it, the regular counter price.

All of which goes to show what can be accomplished by good salesmanship, given a clever talker, an attractive subject and any old kind of merchandise.

So far as could be ascertained up to last Thursday afternoon the cold cream man sold six jars of his great product.

Stealing bicycles continues to be a popular, if irregularly practiced pastime in Putnam. Thursday morning Principal Hammond of the Israel Putnam school reported to the police that his wheel had been taken, sometime during the night, from the veranda at his home on Woodstock avenue. The wheel could not be located during Thursday.

Manufacturers representing big textile concerns in Putnam, Danielson and surrounding towns and villages gathered at the Putnam inn for a dinner and a discussion of matters pertaining to their special interests. Speeches of particular interests were delivered at the gathering.

It was stated here on Thursday that the jitney men have agreed to an advance in price for their city service, and that hereafter trips about the town are going to cost 50 cents instead of 25 cents. The advance is due to the fact, it is stated, that the jitney men find themselves burdened by the various taxes—state, town and otherwise, assessed against them and that to continue to do business at the old price would be unprofitable.

Miss M. E. Hayes, state leader of demonstration agents, was in this section on Thursday and will remain today assisting Miss Charlotte Emberton, home demonstration agent for this county. Putting out home survey forms is a part of the work they are doing. Thursday they attended a meeting in Ashford and today they will be at a meeting in Chaplin.

At Pomfret school college board examinations are underway and will be taken by a number of students who are anxious to enter different colleges and universities at the opening of the next school year in September.

Complaints are coming in from outlying districts that heavily loaded motor trucks are creating a danger to or greatly weakening bridges that were not built to stand such traffic.
